

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1860.

JIM LAWRENCE'S JOURNAL.—The rebellion has been organized well. We wish it had in its chief. The President called for seventy-five thousand volunteers to put down the rebellion; and though, in their efforts, they greatly resembled the sinks that the French shot into Sevastopol, we have never heard that the President or anybody else was harmed thereby. We are of the opinion that the misdeeds which it is now showing at Mr. Lincoln's expense are of his own doing. He will, I think, do what he can to get us off, though he will, I think, do more just as bad, have no more deadly effect than the others to which we have referred. By the way, we will not the Journal go over to the secessionists at once, and have done with its professions of loyalty? In the other camp its mouthings will always be in order.

JAMES G. WADSWORTH.

The nomination of Gen. James S. Wadsworth of Genesee county, as Republican candidate for Governor of New York, will be the cause of congratulation among all the loyal men in the West, who have the honor of that gentleman's acquaintance. Of course, politically, the most important of the distinguished, the power of unfeigned administrative talent, the laborer of great wealth which is wholly at the service of his country, he is to-day one of the most prominent men of the great State to which he belongs. When the country called for the aid of his sons, he was the first to offer them, and when they offered a heroic position at the front, with that modesty which is becoming as his merit, he declined to accept official honor, preferring to serve the cause in a private capacity, or by his money and his advice. His scruples were, at last, overcome, and as a Brigadier General of volunteers, he has been, to the day now, the most efficient member of the service. Mr. Wadsworth is not a politician in any but the best meaning of the word. He is not an intriguer nor an office-seeker. He is a Christian gentleman of profound convictions and unquestioned patriotism, every drop of whose blood is at the service of the country to which he is devoted. Lucky will it be for New York if such men as can be always be called to guide her destinies. He will surely be elected.

ABOUT GEN. BUELL.

Our dispatches from Washington mention that the opinion prevails there that Gen. Buell is not equal to the task he has moved to make room for a more energetic and capable successor. The whole West, from Ohio to Nebraska, hopes that this report is true. The General has not, in all that region, a dozen men who would dare to shun their good sense by defending the policy that he has pursued, or the campaign that he has made. The outcry against him is so strong, that he is in imminent danger of being driven from the field. The constitutional power entitles the order that the document promulgates, is as clear as that any one of his generals in the field has the constitutional right to seize a rebel home, or a canon or a leaden gunpowder. No lawyer will question that. The right is clear and indisputable.

"P.S.—There is quite a number who would be well entitled, what we believe, to have the President's amanuensis to complain of?" Do not those who grumble and threaten thereby confer to their devotion to slavery superior to their devotion to the Union? Let them answer.

THE CALL FOR LABOR.

Valparaiso, Ind., Sept. 22, 1860.

Editor Chicago Tribune:

It is now, I suppose, a fact that Gen. Grant is sending North some 500 contrabands per day.

I wish to let you know that it is for the welfare of the slaves, and not for the welfare of the country, that he is doing this.

Gen. Grant is a good man, but will, if necessary, give preference.

"P.S.—Is there a number who would be well entitled, what we believe, and oblige many readers of the Tribune.

Yours truly,

D.

To all these letters as a class, there can be no doubt that the author of the first is a man of great sagacity in every department of mankind, but no large supply can be looked for from the source indicated.

It is impossible that there can or will be any large transfer of slaves from the South.

The few from time to time arriving North through the federal lines by the Western senator whom I quoted, affording me a slight idea of the number of slaves sent north, will be easily disposed of.

The constitutional power entitles the order that the document promulgates, as far as I can see, to do as it pleases.

The South is the home of the blacks and the slaves have always been considered the inferiors of the whites, and have been growing from their great prison house of oppression. A better day has dawned, and that too, in a section where climate and soil are more coveted by them. At no time in the history of the country has any consideration of the removal of blacks been less than that of the slaves.

The coming of the slaves to the North will, I think, be a simple impossibility. They will remain at the North, save in the few scattered parties that find their way northward.

The great problem of free labor, which will be wrought out upon the very soil where slavery has filled the measure of iniquity, is now failed; and with this, every race it has made its victim.

The North will, I think, be able to stand up to the South, and will, I hope, prevail.

The South will, I think, be able to stand up to the North, and will, I hope, prevail.
